S. J. Tilden on the matter of his possible nomination for the presidency, as the California state convention had instructed for him as its first choice as long as there was any possibility at all of his accepting the nomination. But Mr. Manning was unable to respond to the invitation, but Messrs. Weed and Whitney came as his representatives from the New York delegation. These gentlemen assured the delegation officially, as intimate personal friends of Mr. Tilden, that that gentleman under no circumstances would accept the nomination, and if his name was presented before the convention the New York delegation was prepared authoritatively to withdraw it. General Faulkner subsequently came before the delegation and endorsed all that had been said by Messrs. Weed and Whitney on behalf of Mr. Manning.

When the above sentiments had been made known the delegation decided to stand by Allan G. Thurman first, last and all the time, till there is no longer a chance for his nomination. Hon. John W. Breckenridge, one of the most gifted orators of the Pacific slope, has been selected to place Mr. Thurman in nomination. As that gentleman does not write his speeches, a brilliant effort is expected that will arouse and thrill the convention.

The gentleman selected for the committee on resolutions, General Thomas J. Clunie, is a protectionist, and California will ask for a protection plank in the platform in the interest of her industries.

The Situation Monday.

CHICAGO, July 7.—The scenes of activity about the Palmer house, which is at present the great national political center, were renewed early this morning. At 8 o'clock the main corridors of the hotel and the vestibules leading to it were filled with a great mass of people, which by their very presence made the progress of the cable cars, and every kind of progress, very slow, and at times well nigh impossible. In the dining rooms and cafes in the vicinity of the hotel was an army of men, hats in hand, waiting for their turn for seats at the breakfast tables. The crush has now become so great as to make comfort a matter of impossibility, and the discomfort has been greatly increased by the fact that the headquarters of the party have been centralized instead of being divided and scattered as was the case with the republican convention. Still the crowds to be accommodated are much greater than those at the republican convention, due largely to presence of the great number of marching organizations, some of which resemble a full marching regiment by their numbers, and while it seemed probable last night that all had arrived on the scene of action this morning witnessed the arrival of additional hosts of delegates, clubs, parties and individuals, who came pouring into the city on trains without limit, and as they moved directly upon the hotels these places became as the day wore on inaccessible to every one except stalwart pushers.

The national executive committee held a session this forenoon, and arranged for the distribution of tickets and the seating of delegates and alternates. The national committee will begin its session at noon to-day.

TAMMANY CHIEFS IN COUNCIL.

The Tammany chiefs had a long consultation last night of several hours duration. When nearly through General Benjamin F. Butler was sent for and remained until the close of the caucus. Nothing definite could be learned, but the chief discussion was upon the majority necessary to secure the New York delegation. The action of the Kings county delegates in deciding to vote for Governor Cleveland, thus giving him a majority of the delegation, was not satisfactory to John Kelly, and he became desirous of making a two-thirds vote the majority necessary to secure the solid vote of the Empire state. Whatever was done was kept secret, members of the delegation themselves being debarred from the consultation of the chiefs.

Meetings of state delegations began at 10 o'clock. Ohio is the only state whose meeting is postponed as late as 3 P. M. The reason assigned is that some delegates have not yet reported, but it is expected that a warm contest may occur in the delegation, and its session is postponed, it is claimed, partly owing to that fact.

At the Grand Pacific hotel the McDonald men talk the loudest. To-day another Indiana organization, strong in numbers, came swarming into the hotel waving McDonald banners and cheering for their man. The Indiana people are striving hard to impress on others their belief that he is the most available man and will heal all strife.

The principal work of the national committee will be to name the temporary chairman. William F. Vilas of Wisconsin, and Governor Hubbard of Texas, are the two gentlemen most prominently mentioned.

THE NEW YORK DELEGATION IN CAUCUS.

The New York delegation went into session at 11 o'clock, and the interest which centers in its action appears to animate every one in attendance upon the convention. The supporters of New York's governor are greatly encouraged at the action taken by the Kings county delegation last night in deciding to support him. They even go so far as to say the nomination is practically settled, saying: "As goes Kings county so goes the state and the whole country." Cleveland's supporters are working hard to offset the adverse effect of Kelly, Faulkner and other organized opposition.

The New York delegation met at 11 o'clock and continued in session four hours. Great interest centered in this matter as having an important bearing on the final action of the convention, and the hallway in front of the room in which the session was held was filled with people anxious to hear early tidings of the result. It was understood that at a meeting late last night Tammany decided to insist upon a two-third majority for the enforcement of the unit rule, and the question was whether that number could be mustered. There was a long and excited discussion which has not yet been learned. Rumors of the results of the balloting crept out from time to time, but could not be verified. The following is given as the ballots taken for presidential preference: First or informal ballot—Cleveland 47, General Slocum 16, Bayard 9, Flower 1. It is understood the Flower men complimented Slocum and Bayard with the view of thereby winning the votes of Kings county in the convention. The vote on enforcement of the unit rule stood [illegible] stated 54 to 6.

THE EVENT OF THE DAY.

The exciting event of to-day was the struggle in the New York delegation and the heavy vote polled in favor of the unit rule. It was argued this would force the Tammany crowd into a close corner, but notwithstanding what appeared to be a famous victory for Cleveland's followers very few of the leaders were willing to concede the untrammeled success of Cleveland in the balloting, owing to the fierce nature of the struggle and the failure of a portion of the delegation to come out openly for the majority candidate. It has been acknowledged that if the caucus had ended with a certainty that New York would cast her full vote for Cleveland sufficient western and southern strength would be at hand to make his nomination sure. The fact of the lack of unanimity in the delegation is now being used by the friends of other candidates in pushing their claims for recognition. Cleveland's managers, however, are in high feather and claim as the result of the day's work that the fight has already been won, and that it only requires the sitting of the convention to seal the victory.

Very few of the states which perfected their organizations to-day took a vote as to their preferences. The position of Pennsylvania is known for Randall, Delaware for Bayard, and Indiana and Kentucky for McDonald. It is given out that Connecticut will cast her twelve votes for Cleveland. Iowa to-day took a vote on an informal ballot: Cleveland 21, Bayard 2 and Tilden 2 votes. One blank was cast.

The Virginia delegation was addressed to-day by General Faulkner of New York, who presented objections to Cleveland's candidacy. A reply was made for Cleveland by Joseph Pulitzer of the World, who spoke at length and with great earnestness. The impression on the delegates was favorable for Cleveland. While there was no formal vote it was understood the vote would be cast for him.

Vermont has instructed her chairman to cast the vote of the state as a unit for Cleveland.

SOME PROBABILITIES.

Massachusetts is solid for Butler, but in the event of his defeat it is believed the delegation would be divided rather evenly between McDonald, Thurman and Bayard.

It is stated that the split in the Ohio delegation is by no means healed. It is declared that McLean will be chosen for chairman unanimously, the adherents of Thurman making this move, but it is claimed at the same time that Thurman has only 4 votes in the delegation.

New Hampshire has instructed its delegates for Cleveland.

The threat which has been vaguely made heretofore of an attempt to defeat the unit rule was renewed with great vigor this afternoon, and it is now believed that a fight will be made in the convention which will be led by Tammany, and it is conceded if it is made it will seriously complicate the situation.

While the Flower campaign appeared to have ended as the result of the caucus this afternoon, his supporters contend that they are not opposing Cleveland, and that if the unit rule is defeated those who went over to Slocum will return to Flower and make it a rallying point for his supporters generally.

A caucus was held to-day by Kelly's men for the sole purpose of organizing a campaign against the unit rule. Mr. Kelly contends that the unit rule could be dispensed with at any time at the option of any state [illegible] As the result of this caucus it is declared that Massachusetts, Iowa, Kansas, Delaware and other states decided to support the proposition on the floor of the convention.

The Massachusetts delegation had a meeting this afternoon which was addressed by General Butler, in which he said: "I will support the nominee of this convention no matter who he may be."

KELLY WILL APPEAL TO THE CONVENTION.

In an interview with a Times reporter immediately after the adjournment of the caucus of the New York delegation this afternoon, J. E. Kelly said: "If the delegation does not reconsider its action and still insists upon presenting Cleveland's name I [illegible] will appeal to the convention. We shall state [illegible] clearly and plainly and attempt to have the unit rule broken. If the convention [illegible] to do it the responsibility rests with it. We will have [illegible]"

"What do you think of New York's present [illegible]" asked a reporter.

"Slocum [illegible]"

"Would he make a strong candidate?"

"I do not know. I am not clear on that point. He is popular in the state and has made strong runs, but whether he would run as well for president I cannot say."

THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE.

The democratic national committee began its session at noon to-day, Chairman Barnum presiding. The states represented are as follows: Alabama, [illegible] Sample; Arkansas, John J. Sumpter; California, James J. Farley; Colorado, T. M. Patterson; Connecticut, William H. Barnum; Delaware, [illegible]; Florida, Samuel Pasco; Georgia, [illegible]; Illinois, [illegible] Barnes; Indiana, Austin H. Brown; Iowa, M. M. Ham; Kansas, Charles W. Blair; Kentucky, Henry D. McHenry; Louisiana, B. F. Jonas; Maine, Edmund Wilson; Maryland, [illegible]; Massachusetts, Frederick O. Prince; Michigan, Edward Kanter; Minnesota, P. O. Kelley; Mississippi, [illegible]; Missouri, John G. Prather; [illegible] W. F. Martin; Nevada, [illegible]; Nebraska, J. Sterling Morton; New Hampshire, Alvah Sulloway; New Jersey, Orestes Cleveland; New York, Abram S. Hewitt; North Carolina, M. W. Ransom; Ohio, W. W. Armstrong; Oregon, A. Noltner; Pennsylvania, William L. Scott; Rhode Island, J. B. Barnaby; South Carolina, F. W. Dawson; Tennessee, Robert F. Looney; Texas, F. S. Stockdale; Vermont, Bradley B. Smalley; Virginia, John S. Barbour; West Virginia, Alexander Campbell; Wisconsin, William F. Vilas.

HUBBARD CHOSEN TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN.

Barnes of Georgia nominated Augustus Bacon of Georgia for temporary chairman of the convention. Mr. Stockdale of Texas nominated Governor R. B. Hubbard of Texas, and Mr. Martin of Mississippi nominated Charles E. Hooker of Mississippi.

The committee proceeded to ballot with the following result: Whole number of votes [illegible]; Hubbard received 22, Bacon 9 and Hooker [illegible].

On motion of Mr. Prince the nomination of Hubbard was made unanimous.

On motion of Mr. Hewitt Mr. Prince was elected temporary secretary of the convention. The following were elected assistant secretaries: E. L. Merritt of Illinois, George W. Guthrie of Pennsylvania, [illegible] L. Johnson of Iowa, [illegible] M. Ashford of Wisconsin, Charles M. Vallandingham of Missouri, Henry J. Linden of Michigan and J. J. Barrett of New Jersey.

The following were elected reading clerks: [illegible] O. Walker of Iowa, Thomas S. Pettit, Nicholas M. Bell of Missouri, James Morrison of New York, S. L. Bryant of Delaware, [illegible] of Minnesota. Official stenographer, Edward B. Dickinson of New York. Sergeant-at-arms, Richard J. Bright of Indiana.

The committee decided to recommend to the convention that the rules of the last democratic convention govern this body until otherwise ordered, subject to the following modification: That in voting for candidates for president and vice-president no state shall be allowed to change its vote until the roll of states has been called, and every state has cast its vote.

As a result of a long discussion the committee decided that unattached [illegible] would not be accepted for admission to the convention hall.

The committee adjourned till 10 o'clock to-morrow with no anticipation, however, of having any business on hand.

THE CONVENTION HALL READY.

The convention hall is now completed and in readiness for the opening to-morrow. The north and south ends, which are reserved for invited guests, are cut off from all communication with the square space in the center devoted to the delegates and alternates by a solid board partition five feet high. There is only one entrance for delegates. This door is nearly in the center of the building, and through it the delegates and alternates reach their seats, and they cannot possibly get anywhere else than in the space alloted to them.

The press tables are on an incline running from a level with the speaker's stage townward. The delegates' seats are plush-covered arm chairs, while those of the alternates, which are separated from the delegates by a three foot fence, are plain.

The decorations are complete and are quite handsome. Above the stage is a mammoth flag of the country decorated with smaller flags for borders. Pictures of Washington, Jefferson, Andrew Jackson and Horatio Seymour are placed above the flag in large lithographs. The full length of the galleries are decorated with strips of red, white and blue, with the shields of the various states. Very large national flags are unfurled at intervals of twenty feet, from each rafter, the entire circumference of the building. Everything is therefore prepared to receive the delegates.

THE TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN.

Ex-Governor Hubbard of Texas, the nominee for temporary chairman, is spoken of in the most flattering terms, and is regarded as a wise selection. It has been suggested to the committee on arrangements that the Lone Star, the flag of Texas, decorate the chairman's desk or be suspended in the gallery directly above the chairman's head. All the appointments of the hall are in artistic and convenient, and the seating capacity far exceeds that of the republican convention hall.

It has been generally remarked that the national democratic convention in every respect will be one of the most noted national conventions of the age. It will be graced by such men of national fame as Randall (who left for Chicago to-night), McDonald, Hendricks, Judge Thurman, the old Roman, John Kelly, ex-Senator Dorman of New York, Ben Butler, Colonel W. F. Vilas, the Eagle orator, Henry Watterson and many other men of national reputation.

From Other Points.

CONFLICTING REPORTS OF TILDEN'S HEALTH.

NEW YORK, July 7.—An intimate friend of ex-Governor Samuel J. Tilden is quoted as saying: "I see that reports are being revived concerning Mr. Tilden's alleged infirm condition. Such reports are greatly exaggerated. The governor received visitors a part of the morning of the Fourth and went about his spacious grounds at Greystone with them for nearly two hours. This morning I saw him about an hour. He attended to some of his usual tasks, his correspondence, and took a long ride in the afternoon. Mr. Tilden is a great reader, often extending his occupation to a late hour in the evening. He goes out almost daily in his yacht, and seems to be improving in health rather than otherwise."

James Gordon Bennett's evening paper, the Telegram, prints illustrations of Greystone, Mr. Tilden's dogs and Mr. Tilden himself. Mr. Tilden received a representative of the paper. [illegible] Mr. Tilden rose slowly from his chair as his visitor approached, and without uttering a word extended his arm mechanically toward him and shook hands. His hand was cold and clammy and fell like a dead man's as if there was no life in it. He was dressed in a white linen coat [illegible] and light tweed pants, the latter hanging around his shrunken limbs.

At the first glance he gave the impression of a galvanized corpse, as almost all expression appeared to have left the eyes, and his lips were closed with a pale and rigid expression that was a strong reminder of death. He seemed to take no notice of anybody or anything, and never opened his lips while his right arm and hand hung down limp by his side and shook as if with palsy. His face was pallid and pinched around the region of the mouth and his chin, and whole countenance wore an expression of utter vacuity. The impression his appearance gave was that of a man in the last stage of physical decay, sustained on his feet by a powerful effort of will and intellect.

The reporter after a rapid survey of the situation concluded that it was utterly hopeless to expect an interview and took his departure, satisfied that it would be extreme inhumanity to ask a man in such a condition of physical collapse to run for president of the United States.

TILDEN MEANS WHAT HE SAYS.

NEW YORK, July 7.—Following is an authentic copy of a communication to Mr. Barnum, chairman of the national committee, from Mr. Tilden:

GREYSTONE, July 5, 1884.

To the Honorable William H. Barnum, Chicago: I have received your telegram informing me of the disposition to nominate me for the presidency and asking: Will you accept an unanimous nomination from the convention? and also a telegram from Mr. Manning saying: It seems absolutely necessary that you should answer Mr. Barnum's telegram as soon as possible. Your inquiry was explicitly answered in the negative by my letter of June 10 to Mr. Manning.

S. J. TILDEN.

JOHN KELLY SPEAKS.

TOLEDO, July 6.—Five special trains bearing eastern delegates to the Chicago convention passed through the city this morning. While waiting here Hon. John Kelly and others were called out and spoke briefly. The former said: Tammany is going to Chicago 800 strong and there is not a clever man among them. He would say to the democrats of Toledo that Governor Cleveland could not carry New York under any circumstances if nominated. There were three men in Ohio with whom he was personally acquainted and politically affiliated, either of whom would be acceptable to the New York democracy. A man from Ohio with the right kind of a New Yorker for second place will carry New York. The New Yorker must be a man who will be strong in controlling the great labor party.

BRISTOW WILL SUPPORT FIELD.

NEW YORK, July 7.—General Bristow, ex-secretary of the treasury, was asked to-day if he would support Justice Field of the supreme court, if nominated for president by the democratic convention. Bristow replied promptly and emphatically: "Certainly I would support Justice Field cordially."

PACIFIC COAST.

CALIFORNIA.

Mr. Henderson will go to the geysers to-morrow, for a stay of a week, and will then go for a week to Monterey and Santa Cruz. About the 20th inst. he will go east for a visit to his father, and will return to Portland late in August or early in September.

Miss Lizzie Anderson and sister Jessie are at 125 Howard street. Miss Anderson will remain in the city about six months, and Miss Jessie will return to Portland in September.

Mrs. Stewart McCleare of Portland is visiting Mr. McCleare's parents in Oakland, and will remain until the latter part of August.

Railroad Accident near the Needles.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 7.—An accident is reported to have taken place last night on the Atlantic and Pacific railroad near High Bridge station, about four miles from the Needles, by which the conductor, F. E. King, was killed and several persons injured. Their names are: J. P. Sull[illegible], roadmaster; W. A. G. Ambrose, deputy roadmaster; W. S. Hebbs; L. C. Thomas, Pullman car conductor; George A. Bat[illegible], man of Alameda, and J. S. Hulley of Chicago. Physicians were promptly telegraphed for and every possible relief extended to the injured. Conductor King was buried at the Needles to-day.

A New Counterfeit.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—The secret service division of the treasury department has advices that a new counterfeit ten dollar silver certificate has appeared in the west. It is supposed to have been printed from a wood cut, but is likely to deceive any ordinary judge of money. It is of the series of 1880, G. W. Scofield, register, James Gilfillan, treasurer. The [illegible] is a one-quarter of an inch shorter than the genuine. The paper is composed of two thin layers with silk parallel lines and fibre placed between them. In the [illegible] of the back where it should read "And all public dues and when so received the word 'all'" is entirely omitted, and the words "when so" are read together as one word. There are numerous other defects which judges of paper money will readily discover.

Nominations.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Commissioners to establish the best mode of securing more intimate international and commercial relations between the United States and the several countries of Central and South America—George H. CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

House.

SUNDAY NIGHT'S SESSION.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—In the house last night Randall stated that no agreement could possibly be reached upon the naval appropriation bill, and he therefore submitted a temporary measure to provide for the ensuing six months. It appropriates one half or 50 per cent of the sums of money (and for like purposes and continuing the same provisions relating thereto) as were appropriated for the service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1884, subject to all limitations and conditions in respect to the disbursement of appropriations hereby made that were imposed by said act or other laws of the United States upon or in respect to appropriations made by said act, provided that nothing appropriated by this act shall be applied to special ocean surveys or for the purchase and manufacture, after full investigation and test in the United States under the direction of the secretary of the navy, of torpedo boats adapted to naval warfare, or the right to manufacture the same, and for harness and machinery necessary for operating the same.

That clause under the heading "Yards and docks," concerning the general maintenance of docks and yards, is so amended as to appropriate for the six months herein provided for the sum of $110,000. That clause under the heading of "Increase of the navy" in said act, in lieu of all paragraphs thereunder and preceding the heading of "Naval academy," is hereby substituted for continuing work upon the new steel cruisers and the dispatch boat authorized by act of congress as follows: The Chicago $[illegible], the Boston $[illegible], the Atlanta $[illegible], the Dolphin $[illegible], in all $[illegible]; for armor and machinery and boilers with necessary fittings for sea service of the steel cruisers and dispatch boat under contract with John Roach as follows: The Chicago $[illegible], the Boston $[illegible], the Atlanta $[illegible], United States dispatch boat Dolphin $[illegible], in all $[illegible]. For [illegible] of three new cruisers and the dispatch boat now in course of construction $[illegible] for [illegible] cruisers and dispatch boat $[illegible].

Nothing herein contained shall be construed as appropriating money for or authorizing continuation of the work upon the double turreted monitors Monadnock, Terror, Amphitrite and Puritan, but the unexpended balance now remaining of the appropriation for said [illegible] for engines and machinery for the said monitors shall be covered into the treasury, except such part thereof as may be required under existing contracts made for engines and machinery for the three last named monitors.

Sharp debate followed the reading of the bill, but it then passed.

Holman presented a conference report on the legislative bill [illegible].

The senate [illegible] committee was granted leave to sit during recess.

[illegible] announced his resignation as member of the appropriations committee and Kasson tendered his resignation as member of the ways and means committee.

Hiscock offered the following resolution, which was adopted amid applause on both sides of the house: That the thanks of this house are due and are hereby tendered to the Hon. John G. Carlisle, speaker of the house of representatives, for the ability, fairness and strict impartiality with which he has discharged the arduous and responsible duties of his office during the present session of congress.

At 10 [illegible] the house took a recess for half an hour. Prior to taking recess White of Kentucky endeavored to offer a resolution [illegible] the house until to-morrow. He said the senate was indulging in a hilarious debate which might continue till morning. On the vote on adjournment White was the only member voting aye.

After recess the house took up for consideration the bill providing for the naval service with the amendments passed upon by the senate.

On motion the house refused to concur in the senate amendment.

MONDAY'S SESSION.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—In the absence of Speaker Carlisle, who left for Chicago at [illegible] o'clock this morning, the house was called to order by the clerk of the house after a short recess taken.

After recess Randall offered a resolution appointing J. C. S. Blackburn speaker pro tem during the absence of the speaker. Adopted unanimously.

Blackburn on taking the chair thanked the house for the mark of confidence and said he would endeavor to deserve it.

The house took another recess until 11 [illegible] M.

The house reassembled at 11:30 and at 11 [illegible] adjourned and the session of Saturday closed.

The session of Monday began at noon and on motion of Randall the house concurred in the senate amendment to the adjournment resolution fixing the hour of final adjournment at 3 o'clock.

Randall, Turner of Georgia and Hiscock were appointed a committee to wait upon the president and ascertain whether he had any further communications to make.

The speaker pro tem announced the appointment of Lowry, Hewitt and Lyman, members of the committee on the part of the house to consider the present organization of the signal service, geological survey, and the hydrographic office.

Bagley having taken the chair, Cox of New York offered a resolution tendering the thanks of the house to J. C. S. Blackburn for the [illegible] manner displayed in closing the house session as president pro tem; adopted amid applause and laughter.

At a few moments before 3 o'clock the hands of the clock were turned back five minutes in order to permit the reception of a message from the senate announcing the adoption of the resolution postponing the hour of adjournment until 3 o'clock. [illegible] McCook came rushing in with the resolution written on a scrap of paper. The resolution was immediately read.

At 3 o'clock Randall announced that the committee appointed to wait upon the president had performed that duty and the president had no further communication to make to the house.

On motion of Woolford the bill was passed increasing the pensions of soldiers who have lost an arm at the elbow joint to the amount received by those who have lost a leg at the hip joint.

At 2 [illegible] the recitation of the call of the house was begun. The doors were closed and excuses were made for absentees, the favorite excuse being that the gentlemen were in Chicago on important business. Finally on motion of Young the house excused all democratic members who are in Chicago, engaged in the patriotic duty of nominating a man for the presidency who would beat the republican candidate.

But the call did not terminate time fast enough and the hands of the clock were advanced ten minutes. The speaker pro tem wishing each and every member a safe return to his home then declared the house adjourned without day. (Applause.) Leave taking and [illegible] followed and the hall was soon deserted.

Senate.

SUNDAY NIGHT'S SESSION.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—In the senate last night Hale said: The men who suppose that for the next twenty-five years America can go on in the careless, reckless and undefended condition she has for the last twenty-five years is to me deplorably blind.

Bayard said if the $30,000,000 of public money expended on the navy [illegible] had produced no navy it was for those who spent the money to account to the people who had furnished the money. This was neither the day nor the hour for partisan recrimination, but he believed the time had come when the work of restoring the American flag to its former supremacy on the high seas should be begun.

On motion of Miller of California, an amendment was agreed to continuing the appropriation for the engines, machinery, etc., of the monitors, and the clause abolishing that appropriation was struck out and the bill as so amended was passed.

A message was received from the house, announcing that it had concurred in the senate amendment relating to the contingent fund of the senate, including the provision for senators' clerks.

The report of the conference on the same bill was then presented by Allison and agreed to, thus disposing of the only remaining subject of difference on that bill.

MONDAY'S SESSION.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—A message was received from the house announcing its non-concurrence in the senate amendments to the bill making temporary provision for the navy.

Hale moved that the senate recede from its amendments.

Miller (Cal.) said he had no reason to doubt that the senate conferees had done all in their power to convince the house of the justice of its amendments, but apparently without effect. The people of the Pacific coast would be much disappointed, as it left their coast entirely defenseless.

A long debate sprung up, a portion of it being of a political character, and at its close the motion to recede was agreed to.

The joint resolution providing for adjournment was taken up, and amended so as to make the time of adjournment at 3 o'clock to-day, and was then passed.

On motion of Bayard a vote of thanks was given Senator Edmunds for the ability, courtesy and impartiality with which he has performed the duties of president pro tem of the senate.

On motion of Sherman a committee of two senators was appointed to join the committee from the house in informing the president that the United States congress having finished its business was now ready to adjourn. The chair appointed Sherman and Bayard.

The chair announced the appointment of Allison, Hale and Harrison as members on the part of the senate of the commission provided for in the sundry civil bill to consider the present organization of the signal service and the geological survey.

Beck asked the chairman of the appropriations committee if he could state the aggregate of the appropriations this year.

Allison replied in the affirmative, saying the amount was $[illegible]. This aggregation did not include appropriations which [illegible] alone amounted to $[illegible], raising the aggregate to $[illegible].

About 2:45 P. M. Vice President pro tem Edmunds said: Senators, the hour that closes the first session of the forty-eighth congress has come. It fills almost a century of constitutional republican government of a people whose career has excited the wonder and admiration of mankind. Let us hope our labors as representatives of the states and the people [illegible] justify the placing of a white stone in the long and shining pathway of the republic. However arduous and perplexing may have been our labors, however exciting may have been the contests of opposing opinions and politics, no one of us I think can [illegible] of our separation without emotion. The chair tenders his sincere and grateful acknowledgments for the very flattering resolution of the senate touching his administration of the duties imposed on him by his office. He is glad and proud to say that without exception he has been aided by the constant kindness, courtesy and assistance of all the members of the senate and its officers. The chair in now performing the last formal act of the session wishes for all of you every felicity, and he hopes to express to each one of you his heartfelt personal friendship and good will. The present sitting of the senate of the forty-eighth congress stands adjourned without day.

When the vice president had closed his farewell remarks the chambers and galleries were quickly vacated.

This was the first meeting of the new council for the transaction of business.

Following is a synopsis of the proceedings had:

From E. O. Dodd, Wm. Dalton, Edna C. Dalton, P. W. Severson and J. W. Kern, asking the city to accept amounts of taxes from them as tendered the city collector, petitioners claiming that under the charter the valuation should not be the same as they appear on the county assessment roll. On motion of Wheeler laid on the table.

From Northern Pacific Lumbering and Manufacturing Company asking for an extension of time on the repair of the Fifth street bridge over Sullivan's gulch until such time as the water recedes. On motion of Wheeler laid on the table. Smith and Grutter voting no.

By Wheeler, That the thanks of the council be tendered Chief Engineer Jordan and the board of fire commissioners for the timely and efficient service rendered by the Portland fire department at the recent fire in East Portland. Carried.

Wheeler asked for a statement of the financial condition of the city for the convenience of committees.

The clerk said he could prepare such report by next meeting, if the council and the mayor urged [illegible] councilmen acquainting themselves with the financial standing of the city and to scrutinize every bill presented. Adjourned.

One of the funniest criticisms I can remember on a dramatic hitch, says Mr. Edmund Yates, was delivered in the Queen's theater, Dublin, years ago. A portly Mephistopheles in some "Faust" extravaganza had to "go home." The dramatic devil was, like Hamlet, "fat and scant of breath," and as he sank through a small circular trap—a sort of "converted vampire," to be technical—he stuck. The demons below tugged at his crimson legs in vain; the mortals above tried to stuff him down, all useless. And then, over the delightful Dublin din that rose from the whole house, came a still, small voice: "Well, boys, this is a comfort, anyway—hell's full!" Then they dropped the curtain.

New York.

This is to certify that I am well acquainted with a man fifty years of age, for many years a resident of this city, who has been at times extremely ill, but could not tell from what cause, unless it was worms. He told his attending physician his suspicions, but the physician at once ridiculed the idea, and refused to attend him any longer. His son then mentioned Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge, and asked him if he would take it; his reply was—I must take something to get relief, or die.

They at once procured a bottle of Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge, and he took one dose. The result was, he passed upwards of three quarts of worms, cut up in every form. He got well immediately and is now enjoying excellent health; and, like the good Samaritan of old, is endeavoring to relieve his unfortunate neighbors. He makes it his business to hunt up and select all cases similar to his own that may be given over by regular physicians, and induces them to try Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge. So far he has induced more than twenty persons to take the Vermifuge, and in every case with the most happy results. He is well satisfied that Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, is far superior to any other known remedy, and that if more generally known would not fail to save many valuable lives. For further particulars inquire of Mrs. Hardie, 134 Cannon street, New York City.

TUESDAY MORNING, JULY 8, 1884

THE PLOTTERS

The democrats will begin at Chicago where they leave off at Washington. The chairman will call to order in the convention to-day at Chicago instead of the speaker in the house with pretty much the same kind of material in front of him as confronts Speaker Carlisle, excepting the republican minority. John Kelly, Butler and company will be all the minority the convention can get along with, and to make any headway against this obstinate firm it will take all the parliamentary skill of Mr. Protectionist Samuel J. Randall.

As we wrote on the night before the opening of the republican convention more than a month ago, it is not the time to assume to be wise on the eve of great events. The dispatches tell the preliminary stories from the vantage ground of immediate contact and impartial observation.

They tell that there has been conferring between Ben Butler and John Kelly, which means mischief and trouble. It means addition, division and harmony, on the one hand, or subtraction and division without harmony on the other. It means so much that the interval of waiting for the nomination will be quite as exciting now as it was while we were waiting for the republican nomination, a condition that has not existed on the occasion of any previous democratic convention for many years.

In case Butler shall be nominated, the democrats will leave Chicago with an enthusiastic assurance of utter defeat. If he is not nominated, Butler, and very likely Kelly with him, will go away conscious of their ability to sit down upon the ticket without waiting for a letter of acceptance.

The situation is laughable when we think that there is even a serious contemplation of making a democratic candidate for the presidency by meeting with such grand airs simply to ratify the nominations made by the conventions of two crank parties—inconsiderable but for this third appearance of the great crank figure-head. The greenback party was once a power. It was for several years a very troublesome political quantity in Indiana and Ohio, and the remnants of that party made Butler possible as governor of Massachusetts. Now it is but a remnant all told. The causes which made it possible no longer exist to an extent that can rally any following, while many have come to understand these causes more clearly and to see that the remedy is not where they thought it was. There was just enough of the party left to nominate Butler, but not enough to help the democrats elect him, for the reason that it would adopt the prevailing fashion and have a bolt the moment the democrats should take up its candidate. As for the so called labor party, it will mostly go to Blaine, yet Butler remains a stubborn fact, yoked to Kelly, who is quite as stubborn. Perhaps a two-thirds rule may keep the plotters out, but as it looks now, they will get in and make trouble.

THE MERIT SYSTEM

A writer in the July number of the New Englander is of the opinion that the present agitation of civil service reform will not cease until the civil service is taken out of politics the same as the army and navy. Competitive examinations and the rest of the new machinery are only the means to an end. They have only become necessary by reason of the immense increase and enlargement of the civil service, so that it is simply impossible for the executive to determine by the ordinary methods of inquiry and recommendation which of the applicants are the most fit and suitable for appointment. The end which the reformers seek is not an innovation, but a restoration, the restoration in place of the spoils system of the merit system and its principles as practised under Washington, Adams, Jefferson and Madison. They want nothing more and they will be content with nothing less.

As a step in this direction congress ought to pass the bill introduced by Governor Long to repeal the tenure-of-office act and the four years-term law. These laws now block the progress of reform. The statute fixing the terms of certain offices at four years was passed in 1820 for the express purpose of placing these offices at the disposal of the president without incurring the odium of making removals for no good cause. It gives official recognition to the demoralizing and unbusiness-like doctrine of a "rotation in office," and facilitates the distribution of offices as spoils. It makes incumbents of these offices more solicitous to keep in favor with the party magnates, for the purpose of securing a reappointment, than to discharge faithfully and well the duties of their positions. The tenure of office act was one of the measures adopted by congress "to prevent President Johnson from ruining the country." It was confessedly a piece of emergency legislation, but when the emergency was past and congress was asked to restore to the president the constitutional and proper functions, the senate, under the lead of Mr. Conkling, refused to give up its control of the patronage of the government, and the law has stood a hindrance to the discipline and efficiency of the service, and a promoter of office brokerage among men who are elected to make laws for the nation.

The democrats have long used what is known as the two-thirds rule in their national conventions. A mere majority does not suffice for a nomination under this plan, and if more than one-third of the delegates object, the nomination cannot be effected. Its origin is ascribed to the democratic or Jackson national convention of 1832, which met to nominate a candidate for the vice presidency. An Ohio member presided and at the outset the convention passed a resolution that each state, in voting for candidates, should have a number of votes equal to its electoral vote, and that "two-thirds of the whole number of votes in the convention shall be necessary to constitute a choice." As a result, Martin Van Buren had 208 votes out of the 283 cast. Later on, this rule gave the south a veto power over the convention, for that section was sure of the necessary excess of one-third to obstruct the progress of an unpalatable candidate, and hence it has been denounced as unrepublican, and as a scourge which slavery used to coerce the northern members of the convention. This prejudice has prevented its adoption by the republican party, and yet it has some obvious merits. While it is never practicable to secure a unanimous vote in a popular convention in order to effect a nomination, the candidate ought to have the support of at least two thirds of the convention.

The railroad primaries are open already and returns are coming in. Mr. J. Horace Kent, who has just arrived in Portland after a ride all the way from Portsmouth, N. H., polled the conductors on his trip, and has the authority of their individually punched holes in a card to prove that twenty-two out of the twenty three who punched were for Blaine. The "off" one thought Blaine had not treated Conkling well so he could not vote for him. This secures to Blaine every northern state, and some of the territories. Why need the democrats make a nomination at all, with all the railroad conductors for Blaine? They always carry the people with them.

By a new army regulation the short step is to be lengthened to fifteen inches, direct step to thirty inches, and quick-step to thirty five inches. The cadence for direct step will be at the rate of ninety steps a minute, and in quick step 120. This innovation will serve to make the marching ensemble of a body of troops something more incisive, nervous and energetic.

It will not do to believe all John Kelly says about the strength of Field. Kelly never talks about anything that is in his mind. He can keep his patent perfecting thinking-press running in the back part of his head while his mouth is publishing the most idle tales.

THE STUMP SPEAKER

The Chicago Current says that stump speakers are now sent out "more because of their personal popularity, magnetic qualities and ability to encourage the friends of the particular cause through confident and apt assertion, than because of their argumentative powers." It is true that this is an age of "booms and booming, and, as booms are the product of temporary popular fancies of sudden and exhilarating inspiration, it is the mission of the stumper to develop them or to propel them after they have been developed." But it is not true that the people now will not listen to didactic speeches or to political debates if they are brief, compact and pointed and forcibly expressed. Prolixity and diffuseness are the great vices of American oratory. Whether it is an argument before a court or jury, a stump speech, a reply to a serenade or an after dinner toast, the modern American speaker is apt to be tediously long. A good speech, compressed to a limit of thirty to thirty-five minutes, will always command attention, because it gains so much in both light and heat by compression. Daniel Webster and B. R. Curtis, two of the greatest lawyers that ever addressed a court, seldom spoke longer than an hour and a half, even in civil cases of great complexity. But of late years lawyers have adopted the habit of interminably long speeches, which often force disagreements because they exhaust the endurance of juries and confuse their powers of thought. The star route jury may have been incompetent or corrupt, but if they had been honest it was impossible for them to escape mental bewilderment after being talked to by six lawyers for ten days. The best jury lawyer in Vermont once said that in his opinion a popular audience appreciated promptly the difference between a man of good speech, a man who, having something to say, stated it clearly with force and animation in the fewest possible words, and a professional spread eagle speech maker, such as makes the majority of his fellow men miserable whenever he gets them where they cannot honorably or courteously run away.

Wendell Phillips was always listened to with eager attention because he used simple, forcible, intelligible words, the language of the street in distinction from the language of professional pedagogues, and because he never dragged in delivery or spun out his speech. Mr. Blaine is a didactic speaker, but his style is nervous, compact and full of energy. He never wearies an audience with incessant iteration or with turgid or florid rhetoric. He has the necessary qualifications for success on the stump. His eulogy on Garfield was characterized by sincerity of feeling and simplicity of expression. It had all the essential qualities of a great oration. Simple, strong and stirring, this is the language of true oratory. When Wendell Phillips died the Boston papers indulged in many mournful reflections on the decline of American oratory. But at the recent Harvard alumni dinner in Memorial hall Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr., was cheered as Boston's new orator. He was the captain for whom his father made that famous hunt after the battle of Antietam, and is now an accomplished judge of the supreme court of Massachusetts. His speech on this occasion was in response to Harvard college in the war, and like the oration he delivered on Decoration day, it was simple, fervid and spontaneous. The thought was poetic and imaginative, and clothed with terse and simple words. The closing paragraph may be taken as an illustration of that virile oratory which will always command attention and fulfill the true end of eloquence, which is to affect the judgment by moving the feelings. "It has been one merit of Harvard college," he said, "that it has never quite sunk to believing that its only function was to carry a body of specialists through the first stage of their preparation. About these halls there has always been an aroma of high feeling not to be found or stated in science or Greek—not to be fixed, yet all pervading. And the warrant of Harvard college for writing the names of its dead graduates upon its tablets is not in the mathematics, the chemistry, the political economy which it taught them, but that in ways not to be discovered, by traditions not to be written down, it helped men of lofty natures to make good their faculties. I hope and I believe that it will long give such help to its children. I hope and I believe that long after we and our tears for the dead have been forgotten, this monument to their memory will still give such help to generations to whom it is only a symbol—a symbol of man's destiny and power for duty, but a symbol also of that something more by which duty is swallowed up in generosity, that something more which led men like Shaw to toss life and hope like a flower before the feet of their country and their cause."

Such a speech as this accords, we believe, with the public taste of the present day much better than the ornate diffusions of Everett's rhetoric, Sumner's humid elaboration or even the long swell of Choate's periods. American audiences like simple speech. They want a man to "speak right on," and stump speakers will not be likely to err if they start out with the idea their hearers are capable of appreciating their best thoughts expressed in simple, compact and glowing words and delivered with animation and energy. And they should also show their respect for their hearers as Choate says Webster did, by addressing sound arguments to their understandings and presenting correct motives to their free wills.

Colonel Gray, the man the Indiana democrats have nominated for governor, has run against a snag at the very beginning of his campaign. The Evansville Journal charges that he was the grand "gyascutus" of the marriage benefit associations that gouged so many confiding people out of their hard earned money. It was a huge confidence game and has had a big run among the big fools of the middle and southern states. Its leading principle was to get men and women to pay for policies on the theory that they would get as much on marrying as the friends of those whose lives are insured get when they die. Of course any one who was fool enough to pay his money for such a policy would be fool enough to get married, so with these policies in the hands of fools of both sexes the matrimonial insurance companies were short lived. Now it naturally follows or will follow, that, unless companies are formed to insure against divorce, there will be a crop of fools in these states—especially in Indiana—that will seriously endanger republican success there. The field for speculation is limitless when all the possible consequences are contemplated.

The president has signed the bill organizing a national bureau of labor as an adjunct of the interior department. The bureau is authorized to inquire into matters relating to wages, hours, women's and children's labor, imported contract labor, such as that of the Italians, Slavonians, Hungarians and Chinese now brought here in gangs. The comparatively small amount of the appropriation, $25,000, will render it impossible to do this year much investigation, as there will be room rent, printing, etc., to pay for, besides the salaries of the commissioner and chief clerk and the experts to be employed in doing the work.

The Chicago convention is so timed as to give the democrats a chance to make any blunders they have omitted to make during the session of congress just closed. They will have it all to themselves in the convention.

After a long and tedious session of congress the country finds that the appropriation bills have been passed. A government has been made for Alaska and Fitz John Porter has been put up and knocked out once more.

Thurman with his snuffbox would not be a candidate to sneeze at—but the convention is not looking for the ancients and honorables.

In confirming the appointment of Frank L. Vaughn as superintendent of streets last night, the common council did an unwise thing. Vaughn is simply the tool of a corrupt ring who propose to grow rich on street improvements. For this purpose was his appointment urged by those directly interested, and the mayor lent himself to the scheme. It is the duty of the council to protect taxpayers, not to foster jobbery. The appointment and confirmation will meet the disapprobation of every honest citizen.

The president signed the Chinese bill yesterday, which counts one for the Blaine end of the ticket. Putting this with his veto of the Fitz John Porter bill, it makes a good endorsement of Blaine, Logan and the platform.

The workingmen who banged at Butler's door at Chicago and insisted upon eulogizing him, are workingmen because they work for Butler. Mr. D. A. Plimpton pays off Butler's workingmen.

Butler to his secretary: While waiting for the nomination, you might be fixing up another letter of acceptance.

COLLEGE MEN IN CONGRESS

Chicago Inter Ocean

The number of college graduates in the present congress is unusually large, although its legislative record does not show that educational advantages make statesmen. It is a fact worth noting that the ablest men in both houses, those who are looked up to for leadership, were not college bred. Edmunds, Sherman, Bayard, Pendleton, Logan, Cullom and James F. Wilson in the senate, Randall, Kelley, Carlisle, Reagan, McKinley and others in the house, are not college graduates, but are practically self educated. But it should be said that no one so fully realizes the value of an education as he who has been successful without it.

The following is a list of the principal colleges which have graduates in congress:

Union college has President Arthur, Senator Warner Miller, of New York, representatives Skinner and Wemple of New York, Milliken of Maine and Page of Ohio.

Yale has Senator Dawes of Massachusetts and Gibson of Louisiana, and representatives Davis of Missouri, Seymour of Connecticut, Phelps of New Jersey and Beach of New York.

Harvard has secretaries Lincoln and Chandler, Senator Hoar of Massachusetts, representatives Adams of Illinois, Covington of Maryland, Hunt of Louisiana, Buckner of Missouri, Dorsheimer and Belmont of New York, Weaver of Nebraska, Tillman of South Carolina, and Lyman of Massachusetts.

The United States military academy at West Point has Senators Maxey of Texas, Camden of West Virginia and Representatives Rosecrans and Slocum.

Princeton has Senators Cameron of Pennsylvania, and Colquitt of Georgia, and Representatives Everhart of Pennsylvania, Findlay of Maryland, and Jones of Alabama.

Hamilton has Senator Hawley of Connecticut, and Representatives Van Alstyne of New York and Hatch of Michigan.

Dartmouth has Representatives Dingley of Maine, Ranney of Massachusetts and Brewer of New York.

Williams has Senator Ingalls of Kansas, and Representatives Potter and Millard of New York.

Amherst has Representatives Rockwell of Massachusetts and Hutchings of New York.

Brown university has Senator Anthony of Rhode Island, Hill of Colorado, and Representatives Cox of New York, and Spooner of Rhode Island.

Rutgers college of New Jersey has Secretary Frelinghuysen of the cabinet, and Senator Van Wyck of Nebraska.

The University of Virginia has Senator Jackson of Tennessee, Representatives Herbert of Alabama, Glascock of California, Davidson of Florida, Buckner and Broadhead of Missouri, King of Louisiana, Green of North Carolina, Wilson of West Virginia, and Barbour, Cabell, John S. Wise and Tucker of Virginia.

Dickinson college (Pennsylvania) has O'Neill, Smith and Stone of Pennsylvania, McComas of Maryland, Lore of Delaware, Belford of Colorado.

When Campaigns Began

New York Times

The preliminary labor in presidential years is a matter of organization and calls for careful attention to details. The work in the campaign of 1872 was speedily taken in hand by the republicans. Grant and Wilson were nominated at Philadelphia on June 6 in that year. On that very evening the new national committee met and organized, selecting ex-Governor E. D. Morgan as chairman. Within four weeks thereafter the committee established its headquarters at the Fifth Avenue hotel, in this city. On July 18 it held an important meeting at which it discussed campaign plans. Before the 1st of July a mass meeting was held in Brooklyn to indorse the ticket. The New York state convention was held on August 21, and nominated Dix and Robinson. The state committee organized the following week and began its work about the 1st of September.

In the Hayes and Wheeler campaign of 1876 the nominations were made at Cincinnati on June 16. The national committee met in Philadelphia on July 8, selected the Hon. Zachariah Chandler as chairman, and again decided on the Fifth Avenue hotel in this city as a headquarters. Another headquarters was established at Chicago, and the membership of the executive committee was divided between the two cities so that constant sessions could be had. The executive committee was appointed on July 13. The night before the Cooper Union ratification meeting was held, and on July 17 General Dix issued his call for the soldiers and sailors convention to be held in Indianapolis. On July 29 the arrangements for the headquarters were completed, though they were not occupied by a working force before August 2. The state committee that year was appointed at the convention of August 23 and organized with Alonzo B. Cornell as chairman six days later.

The nomination of Garfield and Arthur in 1880 were made at Chicago on June 8. The national committee, which met the same day, adjourned to meet in this city three weeks later. On July 1 its organization was perfected with the selection of the late ex-Governor Marshall Jewell as chairman. At the head of the sub-committee of the executive committee—otherwise styled the northwestern committee—was placed General Logan. The sub-committee was directed to begin its labors at Chicago on July 21. In this city the building at No. 241 Fifth avenue was opened as a headquarters on July 7. The state committee, selected at the Utica convention in February, organized March 5 with General Arthur as chairman. Its headquarters at the Fifth Avenue hotel were opened on July 1. The first mass meeting was held on June 17. On August 6 the memorable Fifth Avenue hotel conference was held.

This year both the national and state committees were organized on the twentieth day after the nomination of Blaine and Logan. Their headquarters were at once engaged. The details of the work of preparation for the campaign will be perfected during the coming month. The campaign itself in this state will begin during the first week in August.

A Sweeper's Opinion of Congressmen.

Washington Star

"I declare there's about half a wagonload of dust and old paper," said one of the attendants of the house the other evening, as he threw himself back in one of the chairs and contemplated the rows of empty seats. "Some of the members are awfully disorderly. Underneath their desks is piled up in disorderly heaps huge masses of bills, books, records, old papers and what not. Some of the desks are fearful to contemplate. But inside it's worse. Lift up the lids and it is as if a pile of promiscuous papers had been dumped in for the rats to make nests of. And then the floor. It is covered with scraps of paper, old bills, and cigar stumps.

"Some of the members, however," he added, his eyes resting on two front seats on the republican side, "are very neat and fastidious. For instance, Mr. Kean of New Jersey, and Mr. William Walter Phelps. They are two of the neatest men in the house. They occupy those two seats and you never see a scrap of paper or any litter anywhere about them. Kasson is very neat, too, and so is Morrison. Randall never saves any papers in his desk at all. He leaves it clear of everything, doing all his writing and the like in his committee room. About the only other men who are remarkably orderly about their desks are Harmer, Hiscock, Chase, Spooner, Rockwell and Jones, and Mills of Texas. Carlisle, when he occupied a desk, always kept it in order. Lyman, who is a very neat man in his appearance, leaves his papers all mixed up. Reed is probably worse, and Townshend and Le Fevre are about even with him. These, together with Belford, Miller of Pennsylvania, Funston and Van Eaton are the most distinguished advocates of disorder, their desks all being in such a condition that they can't find anything in them.

Rankin, Belmont and Muldrow never sit in their own seats, while on the contrary E. B. Taylor, Barr and Muller are to be found at theirs almost all the time. Kellogg and Belmont are not generally to be found anywhere about the capitol. Kelley is generally at his desk or in the ways and means committee room, and is very orderly, always fussing with the pages for not being prompt and neat enough. Morrison divides his time equally between his desk and the ways and means committee room. Randall is at his desk only when there is something before the house that requires his attention, which happens very frequently, but at other times is hard at work in his committee room examining bills or attending to his extensive correspondence. Holman and McMillan are at their desks nearly all the time.

Yes, it's kind of curious to watch the peculiarities of all the members, but all here together with their papers and cigars they make a terrible litter before night.

Plantation Philosophy—De lazy man is er man of judgment. He allus picks out the easiest place. I se afeerd o' a stump tail dog, case habit nothin ter wag. I doan' know whudder er not he is in er good humor. I doan' like fer a man ter perten' to be a frien'. Bilin' water flung up on a cold day will freeze quicker den cold water.—Arkansaw Traveller.

A boy 10 years old can stand out in the street of a quiet village on a calm summer afternoon and make the air quiver and startle the dozing population out of a year's peace by shrieking to a boy three quarters of a mile away, "Oh, Skinnee! Comin' out after supper?" And the other lad will yell back with awful distinctness and care: "Yes! Git yer nigger shooter an' come to the auction store." And they will converse in the same thrilling pitch and deafening force if they are only ten feet apart. But twenty or thirty years afterward either of those boys will get up to address a public meeting in a hall not fifty feet deep and ten feet away from the speaker not a living soul can hear a word he says.—Burlington Hawkeye.

Marriage as a Financial Speculation

Dr. Talmage in Sunday Magazine

More difficult divorce will put an estoppel to a great extent upon marriage as a financial speculation. There are men who go into the relation just as they go into Wall street to purchase shares. The female to be invited into the partnership of wedding is utterly unattractive, and in disposition a suppressed Vesuvius. Every body knows it, but this masculine candidate for matrimonial orders, through the commercial agency, or through the county records, finds out how much estate is to be inherited and he calculates it. He thinks out how long it will be before the old man will die and whether he can stand the refractory temper until he does die, and then he enters the relation, for he says: "If I cannot stand it then through the divorce law I'll back out." That process is going on all the time, and men enter the relation without any moral principle, without any affection, and it is as much a matter of stock speculation as anything that transpires in Union Pacific, Wabash and Delaware and Lackawanna. Now, suppose a man understood, as he ought to understand, that if he goes into that relation there is no possibility of his getting out, or no probability, he would be more slow to put his neck in the yoke.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST.

Washington Territory.

The OREGONIAN'S Chehalis correspondent sends the following account of Fourth of July celebrations in Lewis county: At Chehalis the Fourth was ushered in by the booming of cannon and the firing of anvils. A large procession was formed and marched to the grounds one mile from the city. The Steilacoom band furnished the music for the occasion. Some place the number in attendance at 3000, but 2000 is nearer the correct number. The oration was delivered by M. G. Curry. Toasts were given by Messrs. O. F. Harmon, J. Wells and J. E. Willis. The place selected for the assembling of the multitude was an excellent one, being cool and shady. The day was a fine one and all seemed to enjoy themselves and pronounce it the grandest affair Lewis county ever had. In the evening there was a big dance at Long's new hall. The celebration at Toledo was also a pleasant affair. About 500 people were present. M. Yoder delivered the oration. About 600 assembled at Winlock and had a glorious Fourth. C. C. Hagett was orator of the day. Lewis county citizens are patriotic and know how to celebrate.

Owners of creek ranches in the vicinity of Heppner are losers by the late flood over $[illegible]. In the [illegible] it has been money in the pockets of the bunch grassers.

Farmers in some portions of Umatilla county complain that their crops are badly damaged by smut. It is supposed that the heavy thunder storms came just as the grain was in the milk, and the lightning scorched the grain, causing the production of smut. It is a well known fact that lightning will [illegible] milk, [illegible] able to support, but the electricity in the air during the recent heavy storms had something to do in causing the large amount of smut of which our farmers are just now complaining. It is hoped, says the Centennial, that the damage is not so great as some seem to imagine. The prospect for a magnificent crop was never better than a few days ago and it will be unpleasant indeed to encounter a disaster now.

A shoemaker named Harry Weeks, who has for some time had a shop in Union, has recently disappeared. He was doing a good business and there seemed no reason why he should leave. Last Wednesday evening he spent all the money he had in getting a new lot of material out of the express office, and borrowed a few dollars to make the payment. He went to bed that night in a room adjoining the shop. Next morning he got up, stepped out of the back door and has not been heard of since. He took away nothing belonging to him but a few papers and a razor. Taking everything into consideration fears are entertained that he may have committed suicide.

Butte is still bothered by burglars.

The boiler of a sawmill at Stillwater exploded last week seriously injuring four men.

Bullion valued at $[illegible] was shipped from Butte last week.

Jack Sparks, a Billings saloon keeper, is under $[illegible] bonds for trying to shoot a former partner. Sparks was drunk.

A heavy gale last Friday night blew down the high board fence surrounding the Deer Lodge penitentiary.

Morris Cook, who headed a gang of alleged officers in raiding a Livingston opium den last winter, stealing about $800 worth of stuff, has been sent to the penitentiary for seven years.

Freight No. 9 on the Utah and Northern was ditched Wednesday afternoon and its conductor, Frank Edwards, was killed. Deceased was a brother of Edwards, the brakeman, who was murdered at Garrison a few days ago.

Charles Alaine has been appointed general freight agent of the Union Pacific for Montana and Idaho, with headquarters at Butte.

The cattle killers of Custer county are being badly shaken in the probate court. The suspected parties have been bound over in the sum of $1000 to await trial in the district court.

At Fleming's "Dutch Al" stole some horses in Judith basin last week, but was followed and overtaken and barely escaped lynching. He then visited a ranchman's cabin and stole everything he could carry, since which exploit he has not been heard from.

The Miles City Journal says: An excellent wool clip is reported in this district. The yield is larger and the quality much better than last year. Those who are well posted estimate that half a million pounds will be marketed at Miles City this season. The condition of the wool as compared with last year is very much improved and it is expected will gain constantly.

MACHINERY FOR ALASKA.

Douglas Island Opposite Harrisburg to Have a 120-Stamp Mill

San Francisco Chronicle

J. Treadwell, manager of the Treadwell mine on Douglas island, which lies opposite Harrisburg on the Alaskan main land, arrived in this city on the 1st just from Sitka, to consult with his partners, J. Freeman, J. P. Jones, Horace Hill and the Messrs. Fry, upon the introduction of a 120 stamp mill upon their joint property. At present this mine is paying at the rate of $1,000 per month, but it is expected that with this improved machinery not less than $10,000 will be its monthly income. The ore is of a low grade and pays a good milling profit. The introducing of this 120 stamp mill and the consequent outlay will no doubt raise the value of the surrounding claims, which are at present unworked, the proprietors of these claims not putting in sufficient work to substantiate their proprietary.

The gentleman with whom a Chronicle reporter was speaking upon the subject said that these claims were undoubtedly very rich and that were it not that wealthy men owned and worked the Treadwell mine it would share the same fate as the other mines on the island. Originally this mine was bought for a few hundred dollars and the discovery of it was in this wise: When the placer mines known as the "Basin," which lie a few miles from Harrisburg, began to fail, the miners turned their attention to prospecting, and some of the more adventurous crossed over to Douglas island. From the reports of these prospectors Mr. Treadwell learned that one of the claims was valuable and accordingly bought it. His venture proved profitable. Since the Treadwell mine has given such good profits the surrounding claims have increased in value, and a gentleman who offered a mine for $500 a few years ago has but lately refused $5000.

CITY

DOG FENNEL, DANDELION ETC—There is a patch of thistles at the north end of [illegible] street, and another on [illegible] between [illegible] and Twenty first streets which a gentle [illegible] pronounced Canada thistles. If this be the case it should be attended to at once and even if [illegible] one of the less noxious varieties it would be a good thing to have them destroyed. The [illegible] or agent of any property within [illegible] obliged to attend to this matter on [illegible] the chief of police and the attention of [illegible] called to the existence of the [illegible] The chief is discharging the multifarious duties of his office to the entire satisfaction of [illegible] and it seems unkind to add another [illegible] but this matter of the Canada thistle [illegible] of great importance. If this pestiferous [illegible] gain a good foothold in this state it will [illegible] thousands of dollars yearly, and [illegible] until Mount Hood has grown higher [illegible] A case in point is to be found to [illegible] A Scotchman emigrating to [illegible] took along with him a [illegible] thistle seed in order that [illegible] native land might cheer his eyes [illegible] The result was that the thistles [illegible] the country. The same thing has [illegible] this country in the case of the French [illegible] in other countries is found in the [illegible] case of the employes of the Hudson [illegible] brought a few seeds of the plan to [illegible] early days and now it is one of the [illegible] of the farmer in some parts of the [illegible] "sheep sorrel" so called which also is a [illegible] to farmers, is said to have been [illegible] in the same way but that is doubtful [illegible] and the daisy are two more imported [illegible] almost as noxious as those referred to [illegible] little value except for their flowers [illegible] dandelion being one of the earliest seen [illegible] A score of years ago there were but [illegible] be found here, and it took all day [illegible] enough to make a mess of greens and [illegible] be found in many parts of the state. It [illegible] none in Astoria yet but the plant is [illegible] throughout the state. The daisy [illegible] for greens, and the flowers only [illegible] are dozens of prettier ones. To [illegible] young ladies carrying huge bouquets of [illegible] the dog fennel and calling them [illegible] brings a smile to the face of the many [illegible] boys have been tripped up [illegible] through a meadow by catching those [illegible] between their toes

Mr [illegible] his horse and buggy standing by the [illegible] went to talk with the farmer. Just [illegible] came along driving a balky horse which [illegible] Mr Burton's horse. In attempting to [illegible] Burton's horse was started and [illegible] down Second street. Near the corner of [illegible] a man ran out into the street with [illegible] and attempted to stop the runaway [illegible] scaring it across the street where [illegible] caught against an express wagon causing [illegible] to run away. Burton's horse [illegible] stable on Third street between O [illegible] attempting to turn it upset and broke [illegible] against the door post with such [illegible] his leg. The poor brute attempted [illegible] could not, and as nothing could be done [illegible] necessary to shoot him. The last [illegible] express team it was going up Fifth street [illegible] rate

Sam [illegible] charged with vagrancy pleaded not guilty [illegible] found his case would be continued [illegible] and pleaded guilty and was fined [illegible] who looked like a victim of the [illegible] Charles Whetstone charged with [illegible] have their cases attended to to day [illegible] accused of selling liquor with [illegible] was continued till the 10th. H Jones [illegible] Drake charged with larceny were held [illegible] $300 bail each. Mrs Mary Canbo [illegible] abusive language to two parties, and [illegible] battery, will come up for trial to day [illegible] things lively but unless she has a [illegible] the city will soon see her pile

[illegible] PORTLAND'S FIRE DEPARTMENT.—The [illegible] common council of Vancouver visited [illegible] yesterday for the purpose of inspecting the [illegible] of the fire department. The Vancouver [illegible] contemplating the purchase of a steam fire [illegible] and thought it proper that their city officials [illegible] inspect those in use here before deciding [illegible] to purchase. [illegible] SMITH, THE SUICIDE.—James Gleason [illegible] appointed administrator of the estate [illegible] Smith, the unfortunate old man who [illegible] suicide the other day. Mr Gleason was [illegible] during his life and after he was [illegible] probably better acquainted with his [illegible] any one else here. This amount he wishes [illegible] and has applied for an injunction [illegible] the opening of the street till such time [illegible] paid

There is business of [illegible] importance to be considered at this meeting [illegible] doubtless keep it in session for at least [illegible] The representatives will stop at the St [illegible] hotel, where ample arrangements have been [illegible] for the accommodation of themselves and [illegible]

[illegible] AT THE FAIR.—California fruit received [illegible] steamship State of California arrived in very [illegible] condition, owing to the length of the voyage [illegible] steamer was delayed by a hot journal which [illegible] a stoppage of six hours from which cause [illegible] at Astoria so late on Saturday that it was [illegible] prevent to come on to Portland that [illegible] peaches and apricots were about one-fifth [illegible] and fruit dealers are out and injured this [illegible]

NEW TRIAL GRANTED TO HOWARD.—In the matter of the application of F A Howard, convicted of larceny for a new trial Judge Smith rendered a decision in the state circuit court yesterday. Upon the ground that the bailiff in charge of the jury left the court room before they came in with their verdict he granted the application. The circumstances of the bailiff's leaving the court room are these. After the jury had agreed upon a verdict and signed and sealed it Bailiff T J Mountain who had them in charge, locked them securely in the room and then went out as has always been customary to request Judge Smith's presence. M. M Southworth, court crier, was in the room all the time. Mountain was absent and there was no possible way for any one to communicate to the jury. Nevertheless the new trial was granted and upon so slight a ground as to call forth comments from prominent lawyers upon the soundness of the decision. Of course it must stand for in criminal cases the state does not have the right of appeal to a higher court

LITTLE INTEREST SHOWN IN THE CONVENTION.—As compared with the excitement and interest manifestations here regarding the convention at Chicago a month ago the feeling yesterday was as nothing. No one in his daily avocation comes in contact with more classes of people than a reporter unless it be the general distribution clerk at a post office but the latter does not learn much from the public. In their rounds yesterday, THE OREGONIAN'S locals for [illegible] were very seldom met with the inquiry "What's new from Chicago?" while early in June this question was asked at every turn. Down on Couch [illegible] the bevy of philosophers who hold daily meetings in Justice Bushwiler's office during the rainy season and in front of the Norton house during the summer are almost unanimously in favor of Butler

FREAK OF AN INSANE MAN.—Edward Brown committed to the insane asylum from this county made his escape sometime since and was recaptured. Early last week he escaped again and made his way to one of the canneries on the lower Columbia. Last Thursday he was seen by some of the men at Eagle Cliff to cross the river in a leaky cranky skiff during a high wind when no sane man would have attempted the passage in anything short of a life boat. As he passed the wharf on his start someone shouted to him asking him where he was going. His answer was "I'm going to pull this boat to San Francisco." Since his perilous passage he has not been seen in the neighborhood and is supposed to have drowned

BIG CROWDS AT ALBANY.—Passengers by the east side train yesterday afternoon report that every train into Albany carried large numbers intent on seeing Cole's great circus. The express from Lebanon carried [illegible] and at noon the town was alive with people. To-day the circus shows in Oregon City and after the evening performance will come to Portland where transfer of the entire train will be made to the west side road. When it is considered that the train cannot arrive here until about 3 A. M., that forty cars have to be ferried across the Willamette; that they have to be pulled up the hill in two sections and reach McMinnville before noon on Thursday the undertaking does not appear an easy one

ESCAPE OF PRISONERS.—On the morning of the Fourth, Sheriff Twombly of Clatsop county discovered that the only prisoners in the county jail had made their escape through a hole in the roof which they made with an iron bar. The prisoners were James Reeves who shot and fatally wounded his partner Julius Frazer one night about two months ago and was to answer to the grand jury on a charge of murder and Arthur Moreland, who had stolen the communion service from the Presbyterian church about the same time

ASSIGNMENT.—Isaac Sinsheimer furniture dealer yesterday made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors to Edward Kahn. His assets including the furniture furnished to the Gilman house and valued at $1500 and the stock and fixtures in the factory near Weidler's saw mill amounting to $3900. His liabilities which are divided among fifteen or twenty creditors in this city and San Francisco aggregate nearly $7000. The largest creditor is Thompson DeHart & Co whose claim is $1700

WILL BE BURIED IN CHINA.—A Chinese gambler died yesterday leaving property valued at $15 000 consisting mostly of ready cash now in the bank. His last request was that he be buried in his native country and accordingly his body will be embalmed by De Lin and sent to China. Friends will accompany the remains and an expensive funeral will be held in the flowery kingdom

INCORPORATION.—Articles of incorporation of the Oregon Electric Company were filed yesterday in the office of the county clerk. The incorporators are Ferdinand O Smith, J Frank Watson and Charles S Rice and the capital stock of the company will be $31 000. NOTES FROM VANCOUVER BARRACKS

VANCOUVER July 7 1884

The battalion of the fourteenth infantry, under command of Colonel Hunt arrived at the barracks Sunday noon. They are a fine looking body of men and will no doubt soon become as great favorites as their predecessors

General O O Greene has assumed his duties in the adjutant general's office in Washington and his familiar signature is now seen on the war department orders coming to this department

The officers of the fourteenth were upon their arrival cared for by the officers remaining on duty at the post and the men made as comfortable as circumstances would permit. Some of the officers remained over night in Portland, and only joined their station to day

An Explanation

For several days past advertisements have appeared daily in the papers and in circulars announcing a change of firm name at Shive's Nine Cent store in the Masonic Temple and the method they have adopted to make it a success is worthy of commendation. A general reduction has been made throughout the store. The stock will be left in its usual condition the difference being in prices of goods for instance a lot of goods that would figure up to ten dollars at former prices can now be bought at their store at from six to seven dollars. It is unnecessary to say that their prices before the reductions were made were low for they have long held the reputation of being leaders of low prices in Portland. There can be no question but what this sale is commencing at a time when we are anxious to make a dollar cover as much as possible affords an opportunity to cash buyers seldom presented. The sale should and doubtless will be well patronized during its continuance

W J Quinn, Merchant Tailor,

28 Stark st will make to order 500 business suits of fine English and Scotch suitings. The goods are all new but arrived two months too late for the season and must be sold at low [illegible]

TAFFY FOR RETIRING COUNCILMEN

Gerdes offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS Councilman J B Haley is about to retire from his seat in this municipal body on account of the expiration of the term for which he was elected and

WHEREAS He has ever been a faithful and honorable member of the common council during his term of office therefore be it

Resolved That we regret the retirement of said J B Haley and cordially thank him for his indefatigable labors in behalf of his constituents

Sears moved that the resolution be amended so as to include Heyman and Chittenden

Gerdes said that it was customary for each ward to look after its own retiring councilmen

Andrus offered a similar resolution on behalf of W L Chittenden

Adams opposed the matter on the ground that was not customary for a parliamentary body to pass resolutions of this character upon its own members. Such a resolution might be proper enough for another officer of the city but if this passed it would look as though the present members were bidding for the same compliment when they retired. "It was 'You tickle me I'll tickle you.'" Passing the resolution was only a formal proceeding, and would be so taken by the retiring members. He regarded it as a bad precedent

Gerdes replied that it had always been customary to pass such resolutions. His resolution had been prepared at the last meeting but the council adjourned before getting down to that order of business

Sears remarked sarcastically that he appreciated deeply Mr Haley's extraordinary services and the necessity of a memorial expressive of such appreciation still he thought the slight services of Mr Heyman and Mr Chittenden were entitled at least to a shadow of recognition

Gerdes consented to withdraw the resolution

Sears called for a vote upon his amendment to include all the retiring members from the Second and Third wards. This was carried unanimously

THE COUNTY POOR FARM

John Waldron formerly an inmate of the poor farm has been complaining about the treatment he received and yesterday morning published a letter in THE OREGONIAN to the effect that while there he was treated in a domineering manner that the food was miserable and scanty at that that he was ejected from the premises bootless and that undue force was used in expelling him and several other minor grievances. Yesterday forenoon a reporter went out there to see what was going on. Mr Cleghorn the superintendent was busily engaged picking currants and on being shown the letter in question said: "The doctor's orders were that he should stay indoors and keep his foot off the ground but instead of doing so he persisted in going out in the damp grass and as the only way I could get the rules of the place enforced was by having him ejected I came to Portland and consulted with Judge Stearns who said 'You have the rules and regulations to go by and your course is clearly defined. Tell him to go and if he does not set him down outside the gate.' I returned home gave him his dinner and told him to put his boots on as he'd have to go. He demurred to this and would only put on one so the steward and myself put him out the gate and told him to travel"

Mr Cleghorn showed the reporter all over the establishment from garret to cellar and in every nook and corner the utmost cleanliness was observed in fact the spotless condition of the floors would bring the blush to many of Portland's housekeepers. While he was there a man named William Henry afflicted with scrofula was sent out on certificate from Dr Watkins

The farm has [illegible] acres 35 in cultivation four of which is in potatoes and the rest in pasture and woodland

There are some 2[illegible]0 volumes of standard works and over 200 old magazines which any of the patients can have on application. At present twenty three men are boarding at the county's expense eight of whom are Chinamen confined to and working a piece of land by themselves. A good two story building, varnished and oiled throughout has been erected at a cost of $2600 for the use of indigent and sick females. Every month women would apply to the county court for orders on grocery stores small sums of money, and a hundred and one things, to such an extent that the officers deemed it prudent to erect a female ward where thriftless or impoverished women could have a room bed and provisions on condition that they kept it clean. It has never been used by females and the court think it a good investment as the sum formerly paid out every month is equal to 1 per cent on the amount invested. The dinner bell ringing Mr Cleghorn invited the reporter in so that he could judge the food for himself. He went over everything on the table peas, stewed currants potatoes onions salmon bread milk mustard pepper salt and relishes, and as an after dinner course blue ripe cherries and found them all of excellent quality and in good quantity

The patients seemed contented and happy as could be expected and said they were getting along all right. Some of the new patients coming here have such filthy clothing that it has to be burned and are supplied with underwear and outer clothing at the county's expense. Some people have the erroneous idea that the farm is worked and cultivated by the inmates which is not the case as two hired hands are employed to work the farm and a contract has been let to outsiders to cut wood at 9[illegible] cents per cord. As further proof of the substantial character of the meals served it should be stated that the hired hands ate identically the same food as that of the patients

THE OLD AND THE NEW

Officials of Multnomah County Whose Terms of Office Expired Yesterday—Their Successors

The change in county officers which was brought about by the people at the recent election was made yesterday forenoon with little or no formality and in no wise interfering with the regular business of the respective offices. A casual visitor at the court house would never have known that anything out of the usual routine was occurring unless he might have noticed the scrupulous neatness that everywhere prevailed and the absence of papers and official documents scattered here and there denoting considerable business was still on hand. Each of the retiring officers had vied with the others in leaving his rooms as well as his affairs in first class order and in so doing all had succeeded. The new sheriff and clerk had more to do than the others because the new law fixing the amount of fees to be charged went into effect simultaneously with their assuming their official duties. Sheriff Jordan set out to make a list for himself and his deputies while Clerk Sanders took a copy of the last session laws and sat down at his desk to study. There was no change in the circuit judge Hon. Seneca Smith being his own successor

Perhaps the most prominent figure about the court house and the one that will be the most missed is that of District Attorney John F Caples whose energy and eloquence have continuously for the past [illegible] years been used in the cause of justice and right before judges and juries in the state circuit court. In all that time he has actually been a terror to evil doers and by his energetic manner of pushing prosecutions has it to say that nearly every criminal who has been arraigned before the court has been punished by fine or imprisonment as he justly deserved. He has certainly left a record for the faithful performance of his duty that his successor can do no better than to emulate. Mr Caples has found in all his work a most valuable and efficient coadjutor in the person of M F Mulkey to whom he has safely entrusted a greater portion of the detail work. Mr Mulkey's indefatigable industry and the diligence with which he has brought to bear upon important cases and many a criminal has been convicted by the clearness with which the assistant district attorney has brought forth intricate legal points

Hon John M Gearin the successor of Mr Caples promises in every way to sustain the reputation of the last. He is a young man of brilliant attainments and a reputation already formed. His success in the legal profession has already been assured and his popularity throughout the county is fully equal to that of his predecessor. This is well attested by his election as a democrat when every other county officer upon his ticket was defeated by a large majority. He has associated himself with Mr W H Gilbert who will assist him in his official duties

George O Sears the retiring sheriff has served the county faithfully for [illegible] years to not which were as county assessor. His election as assessor in 1878 was by only twenty five majority but during his first term in that office he made a radical change in the manner of assessing property which relieved no small amount of the burdens heretofore thrust by the poor to the pockets of the rich. He also took a new departure and inaugurated the system of Chinese poll tax collections which is still in vogue and has ever since that time turned into the county treasury about $[illegible]00 a year. All this gave him popularity and at the end of his first term he had been returned to a second by over 600 majority defeating a less popular a man than Byron Holmes Esq. Two years later he was nominated for sheriff as the workingman's friend and elected by the votes of that class. His experience as sheriff has compassed every possible class of civil and criminal business from the closing out and satisfactorily settling up the affairs of large mercantile establishments to a legal execution—the hanging of Andersen. His collection of taxes on mortgages held by rich corporations by means of the old sheriff's assessment law after the mortgage tax law failed to compass its desired effect served to increase his popularity with the masses and probably no one ever went out of office in this county with so many friends throughout both the city and county as has ex-Sheriff Sears

Thomas A Jordan the new sheriff is a man of firm character and considerable executive ability as he has shown while chief engineer of the Portland fire department. That he will acceptably fill the position to which he has been elected there is no doubt. He retains all the deputies and subordinates who hold positions under Sears as one of them remarked "even down to the cook in the jail." Deputies A W W Gatherall and T C Powell have so familiarized themselves with the workings of the office as to be almost indispensable adjuncts while Jailer E J Dougherty has proven himself a faithful keeper of the criminals committed to his care. Sheriff Jordan's first official act was the appointment of M F Culver and S C Mathieu as special deputies to serve processes in different sections of the county

Wm K Newall the retiring county clerk is one of the most affable gentlemen that it is possible to find. Apart from the arduous duties of his position he has been obliged to answer about as many needless questions as a railway agent and with equal suavity he has kept his temper through the greatest of temptations. He has never failed to extend every courtesy at his command to the reporters who have met him on every week day except legal holidays for the past two years and THE OREGONIAN thus publicly thanks him for attentions shown to its representatives. His efficient deputies, Messrs W H Wood, Miller Weipler, Ferris Houghan and Jack Matthews have been retained by his successor as they well deserved

[illegible] Sanders the new clerk has served the county faithfully for nearly two years as assessor and gives every assurance of satisfactorily performing the duties of his new position. He has been succeeded as assessor by George H[illegible] who has been his deputy and is thoroughly conversant with the work of the office

R H Austin county surveyor has given satisfaction to the county and to private individuals who have found his services necessary. His successor W B Mayre is a competent surveyor and will faithfully perform the duties of his office

The best praise that can be given to County Treasurer William Showers is furnished by his many endorsements from the people

OPINIONS OF THE LIGHT

The following opinions have been sent from principal officials and prominent citizens of Los Angeles to Mayor Chapman:

LOS ANGELES California March 1 1884
Hon J A Chapman Mayor of Portland. The electric light on masts so far as the city is concerned in my opinion will prove a success. At present it is giving general satisfaction here. It is especially efficient in cloudy weather and foggy nights the light on such occasions being much more brilliant than gas affords
C E THORN Mayor Los Angeles

I concur in the foregoing
JOHN F MORAN President Council

In my opinion its illuminating qualities are eminently the superior of gas and most efficient for the lighting of towns especially on foggy and cloudy nights
JAS C KAYS City Treasurer Los Angeles

The [illegible] and it [illegible] explains itself

LOS ANGELES Cala March 1[illegible] 1884
Our city has been lighted by the electric light about two months and has given general satisfaction. The light is smooth and pleasant agreeable to the eye and apparently gives a better light on a cloudy rainy or foggy night than on a starlight night. The electric light is far superior to gas for lighting streets. A greater area is lighted and better than with gas at the same price
J R TOBERMAN ex Mayor of Los Angeles

We concur in the foregoing opinion
HENRY T HOGARD ex City Attorney
R STEERE
Chairman Committee on Street Lighting
R R DUNKELBERGER Postmaster.
Manager Western Union Telegraph Office

The chief of police who, before the adoption of the electric light was much opposed to its introduction now telegraphs

LOS ANGELES March 13
J A Chapman Mayor of Portland: I can say the electric lights on masts in the city are certainly preferable to the lights we have had from gas. A greater territory is lighted in better manner than before and it certainly is a great assistance to us in the pursuit of criminals
HENRY KING
Chief of Police

TUESDAY MORNING JULY 8 1884

AN AMERICAN IN SIBERIA.

From Engineer Melville's New Book on His Polar Experiences

"Leon now urgently invited me to visit his comrades in exile I asked Kasharoffski whether he had any objection and he said Oh no I do not believe a nihilist can hurt a republican So he sent me to the hut of the exiles in his sleigh, which returned again for Leon and myself at dinner time Leon was a slenderly built dark and cadaverous looking man with Jewish features, though when I asked him he said he was not a Hebrew His hair was long and black, reaching to his shoulder He had been a student at law, he told me and was arrested in a students' street row He had been brought afterward before three separate tribunals, not one of which, however, had been able to find anything irregular in his habits of life and so, indeed his final commitment papers expressly stated. While on his way to Siberia the good natured Cossack officer in command of his guard permitted him to look over these papers, and he learned that he had been sent out after three different tribunals had acquitted him on what is known as a government order—a most remarkable instrument which closed with the following specimen of legal logic We can prove nothing against this man, but he is a student of law, and no doubt a very dangerous man'" And banished for life he accordingly was Leon had preserved a copy of his commitment papers and exhibited them with a great deal of merriment at the peculiar philosophy of the administration

In the hut with Leon Melville found four other young men, all political exiles, the oldest 27 and the youngest 18 years of age They were professional men and spoke French fluently some of them German and others a little English All were earnest nihilists, though several said they had not been so until after their banishment. Each one had a mournful story to tell They were from different parts of the empire, had known the inside of Russian prisons all the way from Archangel to the Crimea and were finally sent to the frontier for safe keeping They questioned Melville eagerly in regard to the navigation of the Siberian coast and had a number of charts and maps They had often talked and dreamed they said of making their escape, but 1000 miles of river and 2000 miles of coast seemed an impossible journey with the means at their command

Melville continued his visits to the exiles "In the evening" he says "several little parties were given, when the men sang, played, ate gambled drank and smoked The women did as much in separate apartments of their own and I astonished the assembly by telling them that I never played at cards, not even in my own country. Leon, who was present, told me that they would think [illegible] of me They will say to themselves, this is a queer man, who neither gambles nor smokes, he must be always thinking, and a man who does that is dangerous.' But this was the speech of a poor exile, whose life was lost because by reading and reflecting he had learned the truths of morals and politics and had unwisely uttered them aloud He had read Mill, Cobden and Herbert Spencer, and longed for English books for though they had an English, together with a German and French, dictionary in the hut, they had no other books printed in English and begged me for the bible or any other English book in the navigation box which as they were relics of the expedition, I was obliged to refuse"

The hut the exiles lived in was, it appears miserable affair, built after the manner of a Yakutsk yaurta of rough timber plastered with mud containing the usual outer and inner apartments a kind of weather porch and a kitchen which contained their fireplace and cooking apparatus. In the inner apartment where they lived they kept their books bedding and clothes Russian illustrated papers were pasted on the walls but the ceiling was so low that the room presented a dark and dismal appearance and candles were burning there at midday The government allows each exile a monthly stipend of 25 roubles (paper) about $12 50 in American coin Out of this they must feed, clothe and house themselves, besides procuring firewood and service This is almost absolute destitution for in Siberia the pud, or 40 pounds Russian (36 pound American) costs five roubles Sugar is worth a rouble a pound. Though venison, beef, horse-flesh and fuel are comparatively cheap, all the other necessaries of life are extravagantly dear Some of the exiles had rich relatives who sent them money but not more than 300 roubles could be sent at any one time, and the mail service is so irregular that sometimes there is only one delivery in six months and only at odd intervals during the winter when some government official has occasion to go over the road No exile may send or receive any sealed package Everything of that nature must be opened and read or examined by the Cossack commandant or the chief of police

"My coming," Melville writes, "filled them with the wildest hopes, for heretofore it had been considered as impossible to effect an escape by the ice of the Arctic ocean as to cross a living sea of fire, and for them, doubtless, it would be, as there was not a seafaring man in their number, nor one, I suspect who had ever seen the rolling ocean. Yet before I left they told me that they intended to make the attempt, and I ardently hoped that it might be successful for here I saw youth intelligence and refinement banished for life to an Arctic desert without companionship of books or cultivated society surrounded by filthy and disgusting Yakutsk, who were to a certain extent their keepers—for the natives are held strictly accountable under penalty of the dreaded knout or of imprisonment, for the escape of an exile since nobody could travel far into the country without their knowledge"

The exiles told Melville that all they asked and strove for was a constitutional form of government. They only wanted the privilege of being imprisoned and hanged, if needs were under a Russian law and constitution, and not driven like a herd of cattle into exile by the chief of police of some small provincial town"

Leon, Melville continues, in his character as interpreter, obtained for himself and his companions the full benefit of my recital to Kasharoffski of the Jeannette's cruise and equipment our retreat, supplies, clothing and line of march The youngest exile had been a student at the Ecole Polytechnique and seemed to be physicist in general of the party He gazed fondly on my sextant, for with it he could find his way across the ocean. They had watches and compasses, but no means of determining latitude or longitude So this earnest young nihilist began the construction of a sextant and soon had navigation tables in course of preparation using a Russian almanac to find the sun's declinations. It was their intention to build a boat on the Yana river, near Verkhoyansk and attempt a journey of [illegible]000 miles to the coast and then another of 2000 miles along the coast of Siberia to the eastern cape or Behring straits"

I learned afterward, to my regret that they had attempted to carry out their bold project but without success They eluded their pursuers and succeeded after many difficulties in working their way down the Yana past a large village near the mouth within sight of the sea. They might then have accomplished their escape with comparative ease, but the rolling waves terrified them and washed into their boat, overladen with its freight of thirteen exiles and when they waded ashore it was swamped and all their provisions soaked One of the fugitives was a young woman Some of the exiles frightened at their situation straightway gave themselves up to the authorities at Oceansk, who soon captured the remainder and sent them all into a crueler captivity than ever Leon was sent to the Kolyma river Others were taken from the settlements and took up their abode among the Yakutsk

The Infernal Machine

The infernal machine can hardly be called a new invention The explosive force of gunpowder was too destructive an agent to escape the notice of the disaffected The shell no doubt suggested the Orsini bomb It was destructive but it was bulky. No man could carry many of them about his person It was effective against individuals, but powerless against society Against the weapons of organized government it was as impotent as the knife Shells thrown by hand were no match for shells thrown from cannon. Consequently while Orsini bombs have been used with fatal effect against individuals, they have never faced the organized forces of society, and have had no effect upon the problems of war But science has been busy with explosives since Orsini's day. It has concocted compounds which develop ten times the destructive force of gunpowder It has put into human hands the very thunderbolts of Jove. They can be carried in quantities about the person, they can be thrown by hand or with a sling Nicety of aim is unnecessary Whatever they strike they pulverize and kill all within a certain radius. They can be manufactured cheaply, secretly and readily Any manufacturer of bad smells in the basement of a soap factory can turn out more means of destruction in a day than Krupp could in a century. Nay, the work can be done in any back kitchen If the devil delights in the horrors of war he must be in ecstasies over these new inventions They introduce us to a warlike outfit, cheap and easily manufactured, which every one can own and any one can use. Is it likely that the block upon the game of rebellion will be continued long? Are the guardians of society justified in ignoring the fact?

A Bonapartistic deputy was walking along the boulevard with his wife the other day, when the following scrap of dialogue between them was overheard "Raoul, the newspapers have been very severe on you lately." "What do I care Yes but your constituents" "They don't know how to read?"

T H CRAWFORD Supt

Shall It be Tilden?

Chicago Tribune

It is sufficiently evident that there is a reaction in the democratic camp against Cleveland and that his boom which started out very much like a cyclone is dwindling down to the proportions of a zephyr It is also evident that as the Cleveland boom diminishes the Tilden boom increases and the drift towards the old ticket grows more decided As the difficulty of making a campaign without a well defined issue grows upon the leaders and the possibilities of harmony are more remote than ever, they are apparently arranging to antedate their campaign eight years and conduct it upon a reminiscence To the superficial observer Mr Tilden's letter of declination appears to be final but old foxes never lose their cunning, and it may be assumed that when Mr Tilden gets no nearer a positive statement than the declaration that he "ought not to run and that he deems it best not to run" it will not require much persuasion to induce him to gird up his loins to make the start

In case the democrats shall nominate Mr Tilden and he shall accept the nomination the country may look for a lively campaign on the republican side at least and an aggressive style of warfare which will not stop short of the very center of the enemy's camp and the very core of Gramercy park Among all the blunders that the democrats have made none will be more fatal than the assumption on their part that the republicans dread a revival of the reminiscences of 1876 At present Mr Tilden has the advantage of the old axiom that nothing should be said of the dead but good but if it turns out that the mummy is really alive and capable of making a campaign struggle—if all this physical disability is a sham and he is the vigorous entity that his friends claim—he cannot shield himself behind mortuary hieroglyphics or claim the immunity of those who have passed beyond criticism The situation will be cheerfully accepted by the republicans and they will do what they can to make the campaign lively and warm not alone upon the issue of 1884, but upon those of 1876

The record of Samuel J Tilden is a vulnerable one, sufficiently so to satisfy him and the democratic party with the reminiscences which the republicans will suggest For instance an investigation of the campaign of 1876 will be an easier matter now than it was after the heats of that political struggle It was a year full of frauds and corruptions the full story of which has not yet been told It will be a pleasant duty through the summer months to follow slippery Sammy through the ramifications of Cipher alley to hunt up the secret conspirators who sought to buy votes and corrupt electors to expose the trickery and dishonesty between Gramercy park at one end of the line and South Carolina Florida and Oregon at the other to trace the history of that barrel, who filled it, and how it was emptied to show that other states were plundered by the democratic conspirators, and made returns of electoral voters who were never elected The half of the story has not yet been told

And in case Mr. Tilden is nominated and consents to run it will be necessary further to ventilate his absurd reform pretenses by showing that he never attempted any reforms except in his own party, and would never have attempted them but at the demand of republican newspapers which had exposed the corruptions of his friends, and that they never would have been punished but for republican juries and courts It will be necessary to follow Mr Tilden in a more personal fashion, also for instance as a railroad attorney a railroad wrecker a speculator and a tax evader and to inquire how he made all the millions he possesses It will further be in order to commend him to southern voters by a few extracts from his speeches and letters advising his party to throw off the southern Bourbons because they were an incubus upon it

The campaign will not lack for interest if Mr Tilden proves to be alive and he will have no reason to complain of its dullness even if he is as vigorous as Hercules was in his prime Under the circumstances, the best course for him to pursue is to continue dead and remain as a blessed reminiscence to his friends If he persists in revisiting the pale glimpses of the moon through the ill advised invitation of his friends the republican party will not be responsible for the holocaust.

Influence of the Tariff

Gath at Chicago

"Is Voorhees as strong as the other two men you named?"

"No, he antagonized the revenue reform sentiment in our state which is the largest While we have manufactures our agricultural interest is much larger The Indiana democracy is opposed to the general principle of the tariff That is why McDonald represents us this year better than any other man and we expect he will get the support of men who regard that question as a leading one. Voorhees is an intrepid generous man, with plenty of personal friends"

"Mr Brown do you expect there will be a great debate here on the tariff?"

"No nor do I think there will be much of a fight in the committee about that subject The overwhelming thing with us is victory It is the man to elect. The tariff question really belongs to the congressional districts, as Greeley put it twelve years ago I do not anticipate that Carlisle and Morrison on the one hand and Mr Randall on the other will come here for the purpose of wasting time on the tariff plank I think that plank will be written considerately and not be too emphatic either way though I suppose it will lean toward a reform of the revenue"

Did you expect a discussion on the two thirds rule?"

"Not much of a discussion There are not enough persons opposed to it to make any impression on the old standard of the party The democracy will never give up in our day either to the two-third rule or the disfranchisement of the territories in our national conventions

Then you think there will be a short convention

"There will be a great many ballots taken here, and that may extend the convention to the close of the week. There is nobody's boom going to ride off this convention under the two thirds rule"

How to Enjoy the Very Luxury of Repose

Boston Herald

A drive or a stroll through the suburbs will show how generally the hammock has come into use as an adjunct of outdoor comfort There is scarcely a dooryard or piazza of any pretensions without one or more of these swinging couches Lightly placed and hung, the hammock affords the very luxury of repose and our people have done well to borrow it from their summer neighbors, whose climate and temperament are so conducive to the cultivation of a "genius for repose

But rightly hung does not mean suspended in a cramped situation, with both ends equally elevated. This is the way to put up a swing but not a hammock unless it is intended simply to sit in For reclining purposes, the head should be higher than the feet A good rule is to fasten the hook for the head of the hammock six feet, three inches from the ground or floor and the lower end three feet three inches The distance between the two should be eighteen or twenty feet though fifteen feet will answer The longer rope should be at the bottom end, as this makes swinging much easier and more agreeable

For out door use when two trees are not available the hook for the head may be fastened upon the tree or the rope tied to it and a post set in the ground at the required distance for the lower end In this manner shade may be procured, though the lounger be the possessor of but a single tree The fastenings and the rope should be strong and secure beyond a peradventure; and if the hammock is to be used by young children it should be hung very near to the ground, that the inevitable tumbles and spillings may be as harmless as possible The closely woven hammocks are best, as they do not catch the buttons nor wear out so quickly

For an enjoyable and healthful siesta or for summer reading and day dreaming, this couch in the air is preferable to all others For the purposes of flirtation or courtship—if the latter old fashioned word be applicable to the modern fashion of wooing we have not observed that any hints or directions are necessary The hammock lends itself to the graces and natural wiles of woman and adapts itself to a young man's fancies with a facility that suggests its origin in the land of languors and of love Its utilitarian ends are many, but it is nevertheless essentially a thing of beauty and luxury

Most bells were originally feminine now the two or three that are called by Christian names in England are masculine The most celebrated Great Tom at Oxford was originally named Mary. Fresham the vice chancellor of the period, writes "Oh beautiful Mary how musically she sounds She has done little to belie this reputation since she became Tom Once only in the year 1809 Tom got into disgrace by a series of incontinent ringings which greatly alarmed the undergraduates who were divided in opinion as to whether there was an earthquake the dean was dead or the college on fire

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

MONDAY, July 7

A fair business is doing to day filling mail orders and disposing of freight by steamer constituting the larger movement New business is slow even for the season Several hard showers fell yesterday and more or less rain fell at all valley points Unless followed by severe heat the rain will not affect cereal crops but will prove of some injury to hay

FREIGHTS—The German wooden bark [illegible] 417 tons, loads lumber hence for Panama at $15 For grain the market is dead and nominal, with nothing reported in futures The situation remains slow, shippers showing no disposition to take up much tonnage ahead At San Francisco no business is doing on the spot Late arrivals have come under prior charter and indicate that considerable has been done in that way In the cereal year of 1883 84 California employed [illegible] vessels against 371 the year previous and 159 in 1881 82 That state shipped 11 [illegible] ctls wheat 1 240 628 bbls flour and 46[illegible] ctls barley in the year just closed and their grain export fell short of even the lowest estimates reaching but half the amount generally counted upon

EGGS—Small receipts cause a firmer market to-day at 25c

WOOL—For the moment the movement is light and there is little doing in a selling way As a quotation 14@17c is still named few clips bringing over 15½@16c

SHIPPING NOTES

The State of California was delayed on her present trip by a hot journal and the dropping of a pin She will soon be laid off for new boilers

The [illegible] will carry [illegible] feet of lumber to Panama, and will probably load at Weidler's mill

The Columbia sails from San Francisco to morrow

The Astoria wire went down this afternoon

A late arrival at San Francisco reports speaking the Kirkwood June 28 which reported the death of her captain Sinnott during the trip She will no doubt report herself very soon

Shippers of northern freight this month complain of the hurried and unbusiness-like way in which they were compelled to ship The Bonita was advertised to sail June July 3 and no further notice was published Freight was offered but would not be received until her arrival which event was very uncertain Friday was a whole holiday and Saturday a half holiday and yet shippers had no information as to date of receiving freight nor did any of the steamship officials seem to know when it would be received Constant inquiry and some growling resulted in some being received before Saturday and Saturday and Sunday morning clerks had to work like beavers to clear shipments Then the ship had to be cleared and no bondsmen were ready which caused more bustle Connection was to be made at Port Townsend Sunday with the Ancon and Carr It was not expected to wait long for the Bonita It is only a matter of small justice that more regularity be practiced in this northern freight business The Idaho's withdrawal gave plenty of time to arrange new dates which should have been published officially and upheld Whether the P C S S Co the O I Co or the O R & N Co manages this line is not clear but whoever does it should see that the last experience is not repeated

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST.

Washington Territory.

THE OREGONIAN's Chehalis correspondent sends the following account of Fourth of July celebrations in Lewis county At Chehalis the Fourth was ushered in by the booming of cannon and the firing of anvils A large procession was formed and marched to the grounds one mile from the city The Steilacoom band furnished the music for the occasion Some place the number in attendance at 3000 but 2000 is nearer the correct number The oration was delivered by R. G Curry Toasts were given by Messrs G E Harmon J Wetty and J E Willis The place selected for the assembling of the multitude was an excellent one being cool and shady The day was a fine one and all seemed to enjoy themselves and pronounce it the grandest affair Lewis county ever had In the evening there was a big dance at Long's new hall — The celebration at Toledo was also a pleasant affair About 500 people were present [illegible] delivered the oration — About 500 assembled at Winlock and had a glorious Fourth [illegible] was orator of the day Lewis county citizens are patriotic and know how to celebrate

Eastern Oregon

Owners of creek ranches in the vicinity of Heppner are [illegible] by the late [illegible] The Gazette says [illegible] has been money in the pockets of the bunch grassers

Farmers in some portions of Umatilla county complain that their crops are badly damaged by smut It is supposed that the heavy thunder storms came just as the grain was in the milk and the lightning soured the grain causing it to produce smut Inasmuch as it is a known fact that lightning will cause [illegible]

[illegible] in the country He can however cast a fly with the best of them, and fairly excels in the sport He is an expert at salmon fishing and has killed many a big fellow with a light rod by dexterity and patience alone

Nor is Mr Edmunds the only accomplished and enthusiastic disciple of Walton in his branch of the national legislature In fact some of the best anglers anywhere to be found are in the senate Hon Wade Hampton is almost without a peer as a fly fisherman It is not alone the ease and grace with which he handles the rod that gives him pre-eminence in the piscatorial art but he is thoroughly versed in every branch of the sport His fondness for it has led him to study the philosophy of angling, the habits of game fishes and the utility of tackle He is a recognized authority on all matters pertaining to the sport It has not been many days since Senator Hampton with a naked line on a light rod made a cast that sent the end of the line twenty four yards

Senator Frye is another skillful manipulator of the fly He delights in coaxing the wary trout to take the lure and his smiling face is proof of the diligence with which he plies the rod through the fishing season

Senator Vest is also a skillful angler and a remarkably successful one In the rivalry that always goes with the fishing party he invariably enters with gentle spirit and he usually wins the championship by killing the biggest fish and the greatest number

Senator [illegible] is another superb angler He is the owner of one of the most complete and costly outfits that was ever [illegible] together With the adjournment of congress he [illegible] himself and [illegible] to the haunts of bass and trout and [illegible] to [illegible] the [illegible] of salmon

Senator Platt [illegible]

[illegible] his [illegible] permanent camp

Senator Kenna of West Virginia is as fond of the rod and reel as of following the hounds His home is a pleasant and popular resort for sportsmen He keeps fishing tackle enough to supply friends and neighbors on any occasion and he is always ready if fishing fails to start his hounds on the trail

Senator Miller of New York knows how to cast a fly to perfection and Senator Sewell is familiar with the exciting thrill that runs all through a man when he has a strike

Senator Garland is fond of fishing but he is rather old fashioned in his ideas of the sport He does not hanker after a split bamboo rod but prefers the natural cane pole Nor does he care about artistically handling a fly He would just as soon catch a big bass with a minnow for bait as to delude him to the surface with a fly Senator Williams also prefers the old time methods though he is fond of the sport Senator Vance can handle the light fly rod and the heavier bait rod with equal facility His angling education was acquired in North Carolina where the varieties of the finny tribe are so numerous that the sportsman must learn all ways of taking them

Senator Ransom from the same state likes to go fishing with a jovial party but he is not particularly fond of the sport though he can handle a rod successfully when so disposed Senator Riddleberger is impatient for adjournment that he may set out upon a sporting jaunt He has a comfortable spring wagon and a pair of excellent horses with which he will traverse the valley region of Virginia fishing the streams and hunting the hills His family generally accompany him on these trips

Senator Maxey is an enthusiast in bass fishing but he is not particular whether he takes them with bait or fly

Senator Beck is willing to make one of a fishing party at most any time but it is more the good company than the sport that attracts him He does not mind holding a rod when the fish bite freely but if the bass has to be coaxed the senator gets out of patience

Senator Don Cameron is another who goes fishing only when the company is to his taste and for the fun that an outing with a jolly crowd affords

A man having built a large house was at a loss what to do with the rubbish His Irish steward advised him to have a pit dug large enough to contain it And what shall he do with the earth that I dig up from it? To which the steward with great gravity replied Have the pit made large enough to hold all

STATEMENT OF T L MASSENBURG, MACON GA

I have known much of the use of Swift's Specific [illegible] seen many of the worst cases of Blood Taint [illegible] cured with it, after having tried all other sorts of treatment In fact, I have never known it to fail when taken properly I can cite the case of a young man who had been treated by the best physicians for Blood Poison but all to no purpose and as the time for his marriage was approaching, he was nearly distracted He finally took Swift's Specific and he was cured sound as a dollar
Another who had tried everything and spent four months at the Hot Springs without benefit was at last cured by this remedy His case was like raising one from the dead I could go on and tell you of a hundred cases
